DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 1/31/07 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1, 2, 5, and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Shimoji.

Art Unit: 2623

Referring to claim 1, Shimoji discloses a digital broadcast receiving method for receiving broadcast data in which a plurality of files are broadcast with a plurality of elementary streams for audio and video output, the method comprising:

determining in advance a hierarchical number of said plurality of files to be retained (column 40, lines 25-28; column 55, lines 36-40; figure 8); initiating reception of said plurality of files (column 47, lines 38-40); acquiring a start file, which is a first file of said plurality of files, from a determined elementary stream and retaining said start file (column 47, lines 50-54);

acquiring automatically and retaining said plurality of files linked by anchors within each of said plurality of files ranging from said start file to said hierarchical number of files by analyzing said start file (figure 8; column 47, lines 59-62); and using said retained files to create video and audio output (figure 10; figure 21).

Claims 2, 5, and 8 are rejected on the same grounds as claim 1.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 3, 4, 6, 7, and 9-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Shimoji in view of Brotz.

Referring to claim 3, Shimoji does not disclose a digital broadcast receiving method according to claim 1, wherein all said elementary streams with which said files that were received in advance and retained are being broadcast are constantly supervised, and wherein a trigger for broadcasting that is to be broadcast is received.

In an analogous art, Brotz teaches a digital broadcast receiving method according to claim 1, wherein all said elementary streams with which said files that were received in advance and retained are being broadcast are constantly supervised, and wherein a trigger for broadcasting that is to be broadcast is received (column 11, lines 5-9; Note: in the specification page 13, line 13; an example is given where a trigger is something identifying that there is a "version-up of the file," which is what the reference teaches).

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to add the method of updating out of date files, as taught by Brotz, to the apparatus disclosed by Shimoji. The motivation would have been to keep from having an out of date version of the program stored for the user (Brotz: column 11, lines 5-9).

Claims 6 and 9 are rejected on the same grounds as claim 3.

Referring to claim 4, Shimoji does not disclose a digital broadcast receiving method according to claim 3, wherein contents that said trigger for broadcasting indicates is caused to be reflected on said files that were acquired in advance and retained.

In an analogous art, Brotz teaches a digital broadcast receiving method according to claim 3, wherein contents that said trigger for broadcasting indicates is caused to be reflected on said files that were acquired in advance and retained (column 11, lines 5-9; Note: reflecting the trigger is interpreted as applying it to the given file).

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to add the method of updating out of date files, as taught by Brotz, to the apparatus disclosed by Shimoji. The motivation would have been to keep from having an out of date version of the program stored for the user (Brotz: column 11, lines 5-9).

Claims 7 and 10 are rejected on the same grounds as claim 4.

Referring to claim 11, Shimoji does not disclose a digital broadcast receiving apparatus according to claim 3, wherein the trigger for broadcasting comprises at least one of a version-up message, an event message and a beginning of emergent broadcasting message.

In an analogous art, Brotz teaches a digital broadcast receiving apparatus according to claim 3, wherein the trigger for broadcasting comprises at least one of a version-up message (column 11, lines 5-9), an event message and a beginning of emergent broadcasting message.

At the time of the invention it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to add the method of updating out of date files, as taught by Brotz, to the apparatus disclosed by Shimoji. The motivation would have been to keep from having an out of date version of the program stored for the user (Brotz: column 11, lines 5-9).

Claim 12 is rejected on the same grounds as claim 11.
